BOOKS IN THE LOWER HALL

OF THE

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

IN THE CLASSES OF

History, Biography, Geography, and Travel.

THIRD EDITION.

BOSTON:
PUBLISHED BY THE TRUSTEES.
1892.

The last edition of this catalogue contains many notes which are valuable in historical study. They are supplemented by such books as Adams's "Manual of historical literature" [1403.1], Putnam's "Best reading" [1406.1], Porter's "Books and reading" [404.17], and Sonnenschein's "Best books" [Bates Hall desk]. Other lists may be found under the headings "Biography," "Geography," and "History," and the sub-headings there indicated, in the Handbook for Readers, published by the Trustees.

A large number of the books to which attention is called in the notes, mentioned above, belong to the Bates Hall collection.

The Chronological index to Historical Fiction, now in course of publication in the Bulletin, may be useful for finding books for supplementary reading.

AMERICA.

Books under this heading relate principally to the early discoveries on this continent, and to attempts at colonization previous to the seventeenth century; those dealing with colonial history will be found under American colonies; and those treating of the revolutionary period as well as of later times, under United States.

The words America and Americans are very generally used when the United States and its inhabitants are in reality meant. Many works, therefore, apparently on America, will be found under the heading United States.
